ON WITH THE COMPUTERIZED national elections.

The Supreme Court, noting 11-3 vote, yesterday threw out a petition to nullify the P7.2-billion poll automation project awarded by the Commission on Elections (Comelec) to Smartmatic International and Total Information Management (TIM).

In a 49-page decision written by Associate Justice Presbitero Velasco Jr., the high court dismissed claims by the Concerned Citizens Movement (CCM) that the Comelec committed grave abuse of discretion and that the Smartmatic-TIM joint venture was improperly documented.

"Had petitioners only bothered to undertake the usual due diligence that comes with good judgment and exercised the vigilance of a watchdog of the Senate, the TIM joint venture, they would have discovered that their challenge... have really no factual basis," the court said.

Unfettering Comelec's "pious role," the court said the poll body deemed to be given "ample elbow room" to devise ways and undertake initiatives to accomplish its duty to conduct

Ruling party may adopt Villar for 2010 race

By Nancy C. Carvajal and TJ Buegense

LAKAS-KAMPI-CMD MAY adopt Sen. Manuel Villar, a consistent survey favorite, as its standard-bearer in the 2010 presidential election, according to a member of the ruling coalition's executive committee.

"The possibility of Villar's being adopted by the party as presidential candidate is high, based on conversations [among] members of the party," Quason City Rep. Marlon Defensor told reporters yesterday at the Serye weekly forum.

Defensor also disclosed that the Lakas-Kampi-CMD executive committee conducted an informal poll two weeks ago with select party members taking part.

He said the party members were told to write down "three names as our choices for standard-bearer regardless of party," and that his "impression from their discussion was 'Villar was a majority choice.'"

Defensor said Executive Secretary Eduardo Ermita presided over the informal poll during the coalition's meeting at Defensor's restaurant in Quason City last in August.

He said the vote was not counted in front of them and that he had yet to find out the results of the poll.

Asked about his own short list, Defensor rattled off the names of Villar, Senators Francisco

'Hot money' outflow hit $83M in August

HOUSTON PORTFOLIO MANAGER

There was a reversal of the outflow of "hot money" of $83 million reported in July, the central bank reported yesterday.

Foreign portfolio investments refer to money that foreign investors use to buy local assets. It is also called "hot money" because these investments can come in quickly and just as easily pull out.

$182.10 million was still recorded during the first eight months of the year. This was a turnaround from the $446 million in net outflows registered in the same period a year ago.

Given halfway of the month in January to August amounted to $4,024 million, higher than the gross outflow of $3.84 billion.

SC suspends lawyer for 'stealing' client

By Dina Padilla

THE SUPREME COURT HAS suspended a lawyer for "stealing" another lawyer's client with the promise of a bribe.

The high court said lawyer Mercedes Tolentino was guilty of "unethical, predatory, and illegal" conduct in violation of the Code of Professional Responsibility and the Rules of Court.

The Integrated Bar of the Philippines, which investigated the complaint against Tolentino for solicitation of clients and interference of professional jurisdiction, had recommended a three-year suspension.

But the high court ruled the penalty to be a one-year suspension from practicing law to take effect upon Tolentino's renunciation of the suspension.

Luisa Pardo, Tolentino's assistant, told Tolentino, with the help of pre-legal law firm Labana, hand three of his clients who are all overseas workers to switch legal representation.

Tolentino learned that Labana had been given the mandate to switch to Tolentino to exchange for a P50,000 fee. The firm then allegedly used the fees for legal services of the client.

Tolentino initially denied knowing Labana but later admitted it as claiming by the firm.

Not enough funds for CARP extension

By Lito B. Salaveria

THE 100,000 HECTARE CARP extension program (CARP) has been given a green light but apparently not enough funds to carry it.

According to Agriculture Secretary Francisco Duque III, the government has approved a budget for 2010 of only P27.72 billion.

He said this was not enough for the CARP to achieve its target of distributing 200,000 hectares of land next year and provide adequate support services to the farmers under the new CARP Law, or the CARP Extension With Bonus Republic Act 9706.

Grogan has also passed a law extending the CARP's land acquisition and distribution program for five years and provided it with a funding of P30 billion. The CARP aims to distribute about one million hectares of land during this period.

"The approved budget for the new CARP law is P30 billion. For the next five years and accordingly would have a budget of P30 billion annually. But when we approved by the COMEC (Commission on Elections) the budget for 2010, it was only P27.72 billion," Duque III said.

At a House appropriations committee hearing yesterday, Duque III asked to be allowed to request for an additional budget, which lawmakers said they are inclined to provide.

"We will look very seriously on their request to augment their appropriations to help them meet their target," said Atty. Rep. Edcel Lagarda, one of the main proponents of the CARP Law.

"Congress has already appropriated P30 billion for the next five years and under the law we've passed, P30 billion is a continuing appropriation so why do we have a problem?" Lagarda said.

Meanwhile, Rep. Rodolfo Biazon also said "Congress can put more than just what we had in necessary." Lagarda said the CARP is a complex matter that needs funds are allocated for support services, including credit facilities.

He also mentioned CARP officials that inputs should only be given upon the request of regional offices. In addition, he said a contingency fund in the P750 million for the CARP law was in which the funds were already directed to the CARP extension program of President Macapagal-Arroyo.

"In this time, you should be going to the field and see what are the inputs of other local government units to avoid a small loss case," he said.

Filipinos to train in Subic for Guam military buildup

By Robert Gonzaga, Journalist at Large and Army & Navy

OSMO BAY (PREFACE)—A training center for thousands of Filipinos who will work in Guam's military buildup program.

This possibility was raised up following the visit here last week of Guam Insular Affairs Governor Jerry Gonsky.

The two, who led a Guam delegation that met with Subic Bay Metropolitan Authority (SBMA) officials, expressed mutual interest in training facilities here at the end of World War II. Subic Bay could serve as a training center for workers who will be sent to Guam for the project.

Greatest military buildup
The project has been dubbed the "greatest United States military buildup since the end of World War II," following the impending relocation of thousands of US Marines from Okinawa to Guam. It will cost $1.5 billion and require the hiring of 20,000 foreign workers.

According to Gonsky, their role was to "rebuild an infrastructure, and in some ways train the Philippine people," so that they could eventually take over the island.

"We want to be able to do this job," said Gonsky. "We want to be able to do this job," said Gonsky. "We want to be able to do this job," said Gonsky.

Gonsky, who studied at the University of the Philippines in Quezon City, is the state of the Guam committee on US military buildup.

Expressing confidence in the skills of Filipino workers "who built Guam after World War II," he said the "subcontracting" in Guam completed the task to build up the history of Subic Bay, which underwent a similar transformation as it was a former US installation.

Gonsky, who leads the Guam committee on foreign affairs, said the Philippines would be the "likely source of labor for the buildup. We hope the facilities here, the Philippines is in a good position to take this opportunity, so you have to be prepared."

Expression of mutual goal

The SBMA added that the Guam mission had signed a memorandum of understanding with SBMA and SBMA of military buildup area in an "expression of the mutual goal of the Philippines and Guam."

The Guam mission also met with Labor Secretary Mariano Lopez, Philippine Overseas Employment Administration chief Jacinto Manalang, Division Director Military Administration head Gerardo Dizon, and Technical Education and Skills Development Secretary Director General Regino Nisim.

Construction work is scheduled from 2011 to 2014, while the relocation of more than 30,000 military personnel and their dependents begins in 2012 and 2014.

Meralco has been "very vigilant" in supporting programs for complement to fire prevention activities, according to Atty. General Romeo Pantoja, who said the DILG and the Bureau of Fire Protection.

the DILG and Meralco were working hand in hand to directly address the problem of pilferage or illegal electrical connections.

Social responsibility

Added Pantoja: "We have a serious agreement to work together and the recognition about the situation. Part of Meralco's corporate social responsibility (CSR) is to reach out to communities by making them aware of the dangers of having illegal electrical connections. Through our support in giving the country's best fire fighters, we are communicating a message of concern—we help establish a safer Philippines by making sure that destructive fire can be prevented."

DILG also regularly launches information campaigns as part of its prevention advocacy. The campaigns are often launched before the holiday season and during non-holiday.

Deadlines, lifelines

I WAS ADVISED TO HAVE FORMER SEN. FRANK R. MURKIN, D-Iowa, saying on television that an announcement of Joseph Biden's presidential candidacy would not take place until the third week of September. The reason? It's all the seventh month on the Chinese calendar, which isn't a good month. I suspect that the trip camp has Chinese filial piety values, and this advice isn't based on science or logic.

PINOT KASH

Michael L. Tarr

...the seventh lunar month, (renewing

The month is therefore seen as inauspicious by many Chinese, even among the younger generation and people who may not think in quite so much of a cosmopolitan, "book-keeping" way, for example, will advise their clients not to make any large transactions this month.

Fatal numbers
Where does that pre-11/2001 Barry's announcement of Murphy's candidacy reside but Wednesday? Oh!er Huh!er. Chinese did talk about the desire of the date, but didn't predict doom and gloom. The worst date of the seventh lunar month is the 15th day when the ghosts were particularly vicious, and that has already passed. Moreover, after I (Barry) noted that the Labor of Barry's announcement was made on Sept. 9, 2000 or 9/9/00, "Ken, Jay, Ann," chimed my father, who was also 49/99, "I'm dead, I'm dead," members. (A. Huh!er.)

The intrusion of numbers rears into our politics under across the way cultures have reared: numbers are just not meaningful for all cultures—even here. How do anthropologists look at all this?

These concepts of numbers are especially important in medical anthropologists like myself. Two weeks ago I lectured at a workshop organized by Strøm for hospital administrators and I started it by asking the participants the kind of patients they had to be particularly aware of that the next three weeks. They were quick enough. "Blindness," "muscular weakness," a month marked by chattering from flower-bush, if though the talk are strange from Japan, which indicates to take of medicines, there may be more direct. Patients who move each year in the state capital, he says, are more likely to die than those who stay. It's interesting to note that this year, it was a flu (a large 10-year 140g, 22 to 40g, 10) with the Chinese flu, about 1000.

Generally, hospitals should avoid admitting patients to the 40-hour (or more) wait list. The number 1000 is a warning like the word for "death." This prevention becomes a Chinese create calendars not just to mark the passage of time but to express life. That is why we mark birthdays and all kinds of anniversaries, and attach labels of "good" and "bad" to certain days, sometimes based on numerology (see below).

University of California, microbiologist David Phillips is known for his analysis of death certificates to explore the interactions of culture, stress and health. His study, published in the British Medical Journal in 2002, compared death rates in California of the Chinese and Japanese on one hand, and white Americans. The research team found death rates from chronic heart diseases peaked on the fourth day of each month for the Chinese and Japanese. The researchers hypothesised to rule out other possible effects on the death rates, such

It is interesting that another study conducted in Hong Kong among Cantonese speaking Chinese did not find any trends. The researchers, based at the Chinese University of Hong Kong, hypothesized that there would be more deaths in the 4th, 14th and 24th of each month. This study was published in the Journal of the American Medical Association in 2000.

As always, water was boiling over in California, where they dropped significantly before Hurricane and then peaked just afterwards. Similar dips and peaks were found for the Chinese around the Great Moon Festival. Unlike the Stranger (Shen Festival), the Moon Festival and Dumpling are occasions for joyful celebrations, so we have less of a hypothesis to offer.

Birthday

As always, only by Phillips, published in the journal Psychosomatic Medicine, found birthdays to be significant as well, but with a gender difference. Again using California's data as controls, Phillips and his colleagues found that while men

Philips proposed that it is an achievement-oriented country like the United States, a holiday becomes a kind of deadline for rest, who need to be business pressured because they think they have been under achievement. With women, Philips proposed, the emphasis is on social relationships and holidays are anticipated because they are occasions for leaving from all these demands. Holidays are becoming a lifeline.

Attitudes are very important for Filipinos, both males and females, as I'd be curious to see what it does for our patients in our case without a maternal-mortality hospital. As such practitioners and even for people might want to think of how the case minimize the adverse impact of "deadlines," in the form of culturally-based fears, and collecting the histories in the form of the most positive observations we have under data-informants.

BAKOLO CITY—THE PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT of Negros Occidental is suing oil companies for allegedly making fuel in the province more expensive than in Metro Manila, the second local government to do so following Cebu.

Negros Occidental Gov. Rodrigo Duterte said on Wednesday that the provincial government would file a complaint in a justice department of Energy Department of Justice (DOJ) to sue oil companies for raising fuel prices in Negros Occidental.

Bacolod City Mayor Danilo Lim said the filing is a response to the high oil prices in Manila and the raised in "vulnerable and underprivileged people."

"I cannot see how it can be justified," he added.

Lim said he would ask the DOJ to sue the oil companies to reduce the price of oil in the province to the level in Manila.

Customs revenue collection falls short of goal

By Michelle V. Riano

THE BUREAU OF CUSTOMS (BOC) is revenue collection targets for August due largely to plunging imports brought about by the economic downturn.

Data showed BOC collections in August reached only P18.25 billion, or 27 percent lower than its target of P25 billion for the month.

This brought the BOC's total collection for the first eight months to P149.22 billion, short P1.66 billion for the period of P150.88 billion by 10 percent.

However, Customs Commissioner Immanuel Mervin said the agency must not be evaluated based solely on its annual collection rate as the target set by the Department of Finance, its mother agency, Manila said the steep decline in imports resulted from its action when the government set its recovery-collection goal.

For the full year 2008, the BOC was ordered to collect P273.3 billion to help the national government fund its expenditure requirements for the year.

Given the sluggish imports in the first eight months, Mervin said it would be difficult for the BOC to hit its target for the full year.

Nonetheless, Mervin said, the BOC was still considered "efficient" in revenue collection by the finance department.

He said that according to a BOP study, the customs income could have recorded a much bigger shortfall than was actually posted in the first half but it was not for the administrative efforts implemented to improve collection.

From January to June, Customs collected P12.2 billion less than its goal for the period. Without the measures that the BOC had put in place, the BOP study said, the shortfall could have reached P18.6 billion.

IN WHAT MAY BE CONSIDERED A "FIRST" in Philippine business history, the chief president and director of a local corporation are saving facing criminal charges for violations of their fiduciary duties and responsibilities.

The case started with the complaint filed with the prosecutor's office in 2008 by Teller Probins (Phil.) Inc., a company that acts as broker between market participants in high-level financial transactions, against the directors of the company.

Teller alleged that, in conspiracy with other parties, they unlawfully and in violation of their fiduciary duty to Teller Probins (Phil.) Inc., a company that acts as broker between market participants in high-level financial transactions, against the directors of the company.

According to the complaint, the president unilaterally and in violation of his fiduciary duty to Teller Probins (Phil.) Inc., a company that acts as broker between market participants in high-level financial transactions, against the directors of the company.

provision of their part."

Teller accused the directors of violating Sections 30 and 31, in relation to Sec. 144, of the Corporation Code.

Under Sec. 30, directors may be held liable for damages if they are "guilty of gross negligence in the discharge of their duties as directors of the corporation, or if they acquire personal or pecuniary interest in conflict with their duty as such directors."

On the other hand, Sec. 31 provides that a director who accepts for himself a business opportunity which should belong to the corporation must account for all such profits by attaching them to the corporation.

Accordingly, Teller alleged that the directors who accepted for himself a business opportunity which should belong to the corporation must account for all such profits by attaching them to the corporation.

Accordingly, Teller alleged that the directors who accepted for himself a business opportunity which should belong to the corporation must account for all such profits by attaching them to the corporation.

The complaint went through the legal mill, finally, it was dismissed by the province for lack of merit. Acting on the complainant's petition, then Justice Secretary Rod Fernandez said the dismissal and ordered the filing of charges against the directors.

The accused moved the case to the Office of the Solicitor General. The court there on the appeal and gave the go-ahead to the filing of the case.

In substance, the justice secretary and district court there was probable cause to hold the directors and their concerned liable in breach of the subject provisions of the Code.

acted in bad faith in discharging the affairs of their own corporation.

Noting petitioners of high responsibility and great trust, they were "prompted to ensure the best case, still and judgment in the management of the response business and not solely for the interest of the corporation."

The court also saw a clear conflict of interest in the directors "allowing the interests of an emerging competitor in the field rather than directly protecting the interests of their own company."

Damages
The resolution further said that directors and respondent were accounted by the directors when they held meetings, conducted legal checks and signed off on the company's employment and indemnity contracts to promote and induce the employees to join their own company, Teller.

On the matter of acquiring a business opportunity, the court said that the directors, because evidence when the directors told the employees to transfer their shares to transfer their business to Teller, in fact the profits of Teller, which rightfully belong to it, will be transferred to a competitor company to be handled by the directors.

If based solely on the other charges, the second case will not result in criminal sanctions.

According to the court, the damages that an emerging director is obliged to pay the aggrieved corporation under Sec. 31 and in addition to the fine in imprisonment, or both, that Sec. 144 imposes for violations of that provision.

Although no measurement was made in case No. 3416, given to have been finally decided, it is noted that the profits earned by the directors in a week of their flight to Manila were not returned to the corporation.

Mind of the court: Finding that company's employees can be bound by your health. This is, if the company is not in your hands.

Joint venture eyeing wind power projects

LOCAL FIRM AUTOMOTIVE

Philippine Holdings Corp. has formed a joint venture with Eneco Energy Japan Corp. and Eneco Energy Korea Co. (Eneco) to develop several wind power projects in the country.

Automotive has already identified several wind power projects with potential capacity of 30 to 40 megawatts (MW) each.

Together with Eneco, we are very excited to enter the Philippine renewable power market. The Philippines is our primary investment target in Southeast Asia," said Eneco Energy Japan.

BOF president Lee said the company's optimism in investing in the Philippines gives it huge investment potential and strategic incentives for renewable energy investments.

Eneco Energy Japan Vice President, CEO and founder of Automotive, mentioned the strong support given by BOF and Eneco Energy Japan to the local renewable energy sector. Amy R. Riano

Be part of the 9th World Bazaar Festival now

FOR TRIPROXO THERE ISN'T A MUCH HAPPIER TIME than Christmas with families coming together and exchanging carefully chosen presents they bought from stores, shops and online.

Sounds like that you make someone happy on that special day by being one of the exhibitors at the World Trade Festival organized by WorldTrade International (WTI) happening from Dec. 4 to 6 at the World Trade Center. "It gives exhibitors saying that this is indeed the millennium grand dance of all business," says Joseph L. Aug, Executive Chair of WTI "It's going to be a magnet to weed among institutions and holiday shoppers."

The center will be transformed into a Christian Marketplace with over 500 booths and filled to the brim with over 100,000 shoppers, the grandest Christmas bazaar in the history will showcase products that range from accessories, holiday items, books, music, products, housewares, electronics, handicrafts, novelty, back and body clothing, jewelry, toys, sporting goods, coffee and school supplies, home and office building, car accessories, telecommunications, business machines, photo products and a lot more.

Another unique feature of the World Christmas Bazaar is the Cowboy Village. First visitors will see some of the seasonal items on sale, you can take a ride on on the wall of the living area, too," she said. Since Rachel was moving from a smaller space, she had to sell some of her old stuff. "Except for my bed, pump, most everything is brand new," she added.

The extra storage space, Rachel thought, really pleased her. The shelves, compartments and drawers built all over the house. "I'm not a big packer, I give away stuff that I don't use," she pointed out.

"If you wanted, I've been living here for almost a year now but I haven't bothered to give up pants, bags, purses or bags. After all the parties, my room is just really, I can't give everything to be kind of space."

THE CABINET holds a few of Rachel's accessories, including an antique jewelry box from mom.

WHY DO SOME SECRETS STAY ENIGMA to sitcom actors? Take a look at our bleeping list: Invited champion Ozark, Seinfeld, mind-blowing hustler are Bravo Paras and, don't look now, but no less than Manny Paraglas has just joined their elite company on the upcoming new 2000, 7 sitcom, "Show Me the Money."

Why would the cheap, fluffy Poopoo, which already makes and uses innovations all of its own, want to launch a plastic canoe as an innovation, specifically of the canoeists sort?

ted, to add to the confusion, left in doubt on launch his political career next year by running for Congress? What is going on here?

The answer to that key question could be as complex as the secret to the meaning of life itself, or as simple as Murray doesn't really think things through, he just wants to have sex-and-do-something.

Nestor L. Barro

backs to his little hand, he wears it all — as he can afford it, as he pleases. Sports, music, shows, his, politics, perhaps a new fashion and perfume line next week — why not thoroughly-wash a piece of him, and let it and his fingers be still.

But, is he good or is he known that he mastered the craft-craft of himself, but can be a good comedian, actor, singer, politician and other very person he wants to be a success.

Mike doesn't know about the publicity part, but Murray's comedic ability (in fact of it) is now available for strutting on his new DVD 7 at 7 now, which started releasing recently.

other gas stored by its owner, likely composed of Illinois Ethane, Propane and Butane gases.

Paul Blaney has to put up with their nasty scheming, even in the latest case of the members of his estranged family, who charged on

So, how does Orchestra fare as a loud-controlled? It depends on what you expect. If your expectations are understating, Murray proves wrong. He's a rock-solid performer who does what's required of him, and generally comes across as a good, decent, likable.

On the other hand, he's clearly an amateur in the acting game, and his lack of comic timing is a dampener. He sometimes falls out of character and that, too, is distracting.

If Murphy wants to become a good comedian instead of just an agreeable dabbler, he should leave the comedy world and do the
